HORSES IN THE PARK.

The Latest Horrid Bugaboo of the "Tribune."

SOME EXPLANATORY REMARKS.

What Mayor Armstrong Has to Say About the "Park Outrage" which is Causing Such Concern.

A number of inquiries having been made by citizens in regard to the reason for closing the gates at the Park each evening at dusk, and the Tribune having contained an item the other morning insinuating that the Park had been given up to a horse pasture, a Herald reporter swooped down on the City Hall yesterday to seek an explanation. He found His Honor engaged in a private office in conversation with an employee of the Park, and as luck would have it, they were discussing the identical subject which had induced the reporter's onslaught, so that the latter had only to open his ears and his note book and punctuate their talk with a few interrogatories to glean for the benefit of interested Herald readers, the following information:

For the past number of years Liberty Park has been infested during the autumn, winter and early spring with hundreds of field mice, which have proven a veritable pest to the cultivation and improvement of the place, and the superintendent in charge, Mr. A. Schultze, a very intelligent German of extended experience as a gardener and superintendent of parks in the old country, has been put to his wits' end to provide a plan to get rid of the troublesome little depredators, which in the past two or three years have destroyed upwards of 300 trees of various sizes, some of them quite rare and of valuable variety. Particularly was he perplexed in view of the fact that although vast amounts of attention had been given to the extermination of the vermin at the Park, that elsewhere, yet the owners of land adjacent to the Park, with little or no effort, had been able to rid their fields of the nuisance, while inside the Park the mice still swarmed and frolicked and laughed at all efforts for their extermination.

It is on this blue vitriol, strychnine and other poisons of a deadly nature have been sprinkled about the roots of trees and in the burrows, with some successful results, but it seemed that for each mouse killed, like flies at a soda fountain, a hundred more came trooping to the funeral, each with a bit of the bark off some choice tree in its mouth as an emblem of respect for the fallen hero and of defiance to the doughty gardener and his men. And so, from season to season, the peckly little critters have flourished like a green bay tree till finally the superintendent made a discovery. It was simply this: He had noticed after harvest each year that stock were pastured in the adjoining fields, while there were none, of course, in the Park. The effect was that all the mice in the surrounding country were driven by the stock into the Park and made a winter rendezvous of the frozen patches there, the snow from the cold as if it were constructed for the express purpose. "Consequently," argued the Superintendent, "the remedy will be to put some stock in the Park." He confided his views to the Mayor, who objected at first on the ground that the stock might destroy as much property as the mice, but receiving the assurance of the Superintendent that horses could be easily and inexpensively controlled and that the little damage they might do could be readily repaired, and considering the incomparable benefit that would result in case the experiment proved successful, he consented and two or three bands of horses, known to be gentle, were placed in the Park.

"As to the Tribune's comments," said the Mayor, with a smile, when the reporter recounted some of them, "you know that those fellows would always rather distort and misrepresent a fact than state the truth. You can't blame them for it; it's their regular business. But I want you to say that Liberty Park is as much a 'breathing place' for the people as ever it was, and that it will continue to be, and driving is just as safe there now as before the horses were put there. I did not want to keep a man herding at the gate all night, so I ordered the gates closed about dark, thinking all good citizens would be at home about that hour, but if there are some night hawks who want to go poking around the Park in the dark, why perhaps the gates may be kept open a little longer. It was from no choice of mine that my horses or any of the others were placed there, as they were all taken from good pastures at our own expense and put in the Park as an accommodation, and, as already stated, to free the Park of a pest which gave every indication of destroying hundreds of dollars worth of property."

"And how about the poor people who go there to rest under the trees and let their babies roll on the grass?" queried the reporter, quoting from the Tribune.

"Well," replied His Honor, "if they let their babies roll on the grass now at this season I think pneumonia will get in its work ahead of the horses. No, we purposely waited until all picnicing was over with."

"And how long will the horses remain?"

"Oh I don't know. We shall see how the plan works. I suppose until the grass is eaten down and the ground is pretty well trampled."

"And so that is all, there is in the Tribune's great 'Park outrage,' is it?"

"Even so."

"I was ever thus from morning till night. The Tribune's latest bugaboo flat out we never flinched at so long. But some one let the old cat out."

SODA SPRINGS AND VICINITY.

A Melange of News from the Home of the Idanha.

"On to Cariboo!" is the prevalent cry now.

ALL SHIPMENTS to Cariboo, whether of grain, machinery or provisions, are made via Soda Springs.

IDAHOANS firmly believe that their springs are worth as much to them as is the Great Salt Lake to the citizens of Utah.

The "MINERAL" water industry is kept up during the winter, and quite a number of persons are employed at the works.

THE HOTEL company will add 100 more rooms to their building next spring. This, as Mr. Rose puts it, "is a boom pure and simple."

THE HERALD is greeted as a welcome visitor by the people of these northern valleys, and they watch the political and other movement at Salt Lake with the keenest interest.

SODA'S NEW hotel rears its crest majestically above the town. The structure is a magnificent one, and will long stand as a monument to the work of the late John H. Burton.

At CARIBOO, the new mining district north, matters are very promising. During the past summer a new forty-stamp mill has been put in, some residences have been built, and the spring will doubtless bring a rush of good business there.

How to reduce the rate of taxation is the all-absorbing topic in Idaho just now. And well it might be. Think of it! A tax aggregating three cents on the dollar is waged on all citizens, irrespective of race, color or previous condition of servitude.

THERE is still considerable comment, even among residents, relative to the merits of the water of the several springs. Some claim superiority for the Horseshoe, some for the Octagon, some for the Hooper, and still others for the Ninety Per Cent. Your correspondent will not attempt to settle the controversy, but after a brief residence he is free to say that the so-called "disadvantages" constitute a fair case of "a distinction without a difference."

THE TERRITORIAL school commissioner has ruled that county school boards have no right to bar teachers from getting certificates on religious grounds. This will doubtless be a black eye to the petty officials who have insolently stepped on the rights of Mormon teachers at Malad and other places. Who ever heard of a Mormon board refusing a certificate on religious grounds? Numberless cases can be shown where they have issued to Presbyterian, Methodist, non-religionist and Mormon alike.

To persons who make this their habit during midsummer, Soda would now present a weird, odd appearance, though now it is by no means without interest. Its waters are just as magical, its scenery just as romantic and its soil and topographical features just as odd as ever. Nature has done a great deal for Soda, and she is now trying to do a great deal for herself. The enterprising Horsley Bros. have reared two nice residences during the year. C. G. Rose has built a fine store, Bishop Laury, Wallace & Lyman and Mrs. Williams have also made material improvements and additions to their residences.

A good story is told of a lively retort which confronted a Salt Lake man in this vicinity recently. On meeting a number of boys and girls on their way to a dance near the terminus of the main street of a certain Bar Lake town, the facetious Salt Lake noticed that the crowd, which consisted of some eight or ten boys and girls of the age of about 15, was a very peculiar one, and evidently being himself "eager for the fray," good-naturedly shouted, "Say, boys, how far is it up here about half a mile?" This was rather an awkward question, and some of the girls, instinctively feeling that there was a joke in the wind, began to laugh. At this our good-natured Salt Lake man thought he had fastened the joke sure; but he was disabused quick as thought by the young Bar Lake (not the monster) replying, "About sixteen rods this side of the Co-op."

This placed the case on about an even footing, and both assailed and assailed moved onward without further ado.

SODA SPRINGS, November 14, 1887.

Alarming.

Yesterday there were seven cases of contagious diseases reported to Dr. Clinton, quarantine physician, as follows:

One case of diphtheria at 19 First North street.

One case of diphtheria at Mrs. Kimball's, 101 Main street.

One case of scarlet fever at A. Caine's, E. South Temple street.

One case of scarlet fever at T. Parsons', on Commercial street.

One case of diphtheria at W. J. Silver's, on North Temple street, Seventeenth Ward.

One case of diphtheria, reported by Dr. Holland, at the residence of Mr. Braithwaite, 59 Centre street.

And one case of the last-named disease at the house next east of John Clark's, Fifteenth Ward.

Some consternation and alarm was created by the announcement of so many cases in one day, and physicians were puzzled to account for the sudden outbreak, there having been no great change in the weather during the past few days, and the city having been so free from the dread contagions for a couple of weeks or more.

Frisco-Taylor Mails.

Postmaster Barratt has been notified by the Department that the service between Frisco, Utah, and Taylor, Nevada, which the sub-contractors failed to perform, will be at once re-established. The postmaster at Frisco has accordingly been instructed by the Department to provide for the service immediately. This will be good news for our southern Utah and eastern Nevada friends.

Is Consumption Incurable?

Read the following: Mr. C. H. Morris, Newark, Ark., says: "Was down with Abscess of Lungs, and friends and physicians pronounced me an incurable Consumptive. Began taking Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, and now on my third bottle, and able to oversee the work on my farm. It is the finest medicine ever made."

Jesse Middlemore, Decatur, Ohio, says: "Had it not been for Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, I would have died of Lung Trouble. Was given up by doctors. Am now in best of health." Try it. Sample bottles free at Z. C. M. L. Co's. Drug Store, 5

Cattle Feed Drying Up—Contemplated Reservoirs—Miscellaneous News Paragraphs.

Not a drop of rain or a flake of snow has fallen since I wrote to you from Parowan, in Beaver or Iron Counties, and not more than on inch of snow has covered the ground in the two storms that we have had this fall. It is remarked by every old resident, that this fall is the most pleasant and summer-like they have witnessed or known in Utah for the past thirty-five years. The roads from Fillmore to Beaver, Parowan to Cedar City, across the Black Ridge, to Silver Reef and St. George, have been hard, dry and dusty for the last two months.

In consequence of the excessive drought throughout the county this summer and fall, and particularly in the valley west of Minersville, the Ryan & Ryan Cattle Company shipped nineteen carloads of cattle from Milford, Utah, at one shipment, in September last, to Wyoming and Omaha, the majority being cows.

Notwithstanding the extensive area of the range in these three counties, stockmen say the grass contains no nutriment for stock cattle, and weasels, cows that "got down" in the lower part of the county, in the vicinity of Pine Grove, Wah Wah Valley, Black Rock, Antelope Springs and the Murdock ranches on the "Beaver Bottoms," had to be helped up in a great many instances, brought to feed corrals and strengthened for the winter, so that the range stock-raisers say this is the worst they ever saw in this district.

The majority of the extensive sheep herds owned in this city, are yet in the mountains east of some 5,000 head. These are in the vicinity of Mount Baldy and Belnap, and south and west of Purfer Lake. The Low Brothers, of this city, interested with Presley Denny, drove their cattle (including some thoroughbred G. H. Hays) up into the mountains in June last, from their old ranch, Buckskin Valley, which is in the northeast part of Parowan Valley and about twenty miles from Beaver City, thereby taking the advantage and benefit of the mountain range around Britt's Meadows, and the good feed.

In ten thousand acres and wool lands green, that Uncle Sam has never yet seen; and their cattle just driven out show their summer keeping in the mountains. As to the weather, one extreme generally follows another, and if the winter turns out as anticipated, there will be from one-third to one-half loss in stock before the last of May next.

The last of the three of McDonough & Company's reservoirs; two at the head of South Creek, and the one that four scrapers, one plow, four teams and six men have been working on for the past four weeks, in Lee's Springs Canyon, will be completed in a few days, and the company will be able to hold back during the months of April, May and June, sufficient of the surplus waters of South Creek, that has gone to waste like a torrent for the past twenty years, adding to, and helping the Beaver River to damage and wash away the hundreds of acres of the best farming land between this and Adamsville, and wasting itself between Black Rock and the Sevier Lake, to irrigate a section or more of the best land in Parowan Valley, lying immediately between the mouth of Fremont Canyon and the Mule Point.

The citizens of Beaver City, seem to have been aroused by the scarcity of water during the past season to the necessity and benefits of reservoirs, and have done the work first (and the talk afterward) in the making of a dam on Britt's Meadows sufficient to hold the waters of Beaver River back at that point till needed, so as to benefit the community generally in June and July.

Minersville, which by right of prior use and appropriation of the waters of Beaver River, dates back to 1859, has suffered for the lack of irrigating water seven years out of ten since its settlement, in consequence of which the citizens there built a dam of which the bridge, years ago, for the purpose of a reservoir, ribbed with cedar posts, and ballasted with plenty of rock and gravel, and Colonel Dupux wanting the location for a mill site, and finding it public United States land, made entry of the same under preemption right and the citizens lost through thoughtlessness or lack of legal advice their labor, which would have cost them $1,000. Not discouraged by their failure and loss, they commenced again this year, by purchasing William J. Jones' farm and others east of the "Rocky Ford," some five miles on the river from Minersville, and there at the Ford, which is universally said to be the best location for a reservoir in this valley, they intend to build a dam, that when completed, will hold the water of the river back, or a mile and a half, forming a lake that length northeast and two hundred yards to a half mile wide.

The Twitchell Brothers & Sons have also this summer built a solid dam across and at the head waters of Indian Creek, which, when completed, will enable them to irrigate double the quantity of land heretofore.

Puffer Lake, a sheet of water next in size and quantity to Fanguitch Lake, located at the head of our Beaver River, some six miles east of here, has been taken charge of during the fall by C. C. Woodhouse, Jr., our postmaster and rumor says C. W. Zane, Esq., assistant deputy United States prosecuting attorney for this district, and W. L. Cook, official reporter, are also financially investing and interested therein. The object of damming up the lake, is said to be for millsite purposes; a good and substantial dam having been put up, with flume outlet sufficient to hold the water back till June and July, when so much needed to the height of twenty feet above the highest overflow mark of the lake, and it is certain the company will have irrigating water to sell to the farmers when needed.

The deputies are out of town some where, determined to improve the morals of southern Utah. A party of whooping cough among the adults and children and some measles, but no diphtheria or pneumonia. More snow, as soon as the deputies return.

BEAVER, UTAH, Nov. 15, 1887.

I. O. O. F. BANQUET.

A Memorable Reunion at the Cullen Hotel.

One of the most agreeable and pleasant social events which has transpired of late years was that which occurred at the Cullen Hotel last evening. It was the grand banquet in honor of the fourteenth anniversary of the organization of Jordan Lodge No. 3, I. O. O. F. About 100 guests had been invited, and the sumptuous supper, which embraced fifteen courses, was partaken of with relish and gusto by the ladies and gentlemen assembled. The tables were a dazzling sight to gaze upon. In the centre were two columns, decorated with floral work forming three links and 1887 on one side, and 1873 on the other. The speakers of the evening, who directed their remarks to the good and progress of the order, and particularly of Lodge No. 3, were Noble Grand of Jordan, Charles Brown Past Grand Master, George Arbogast and Grand Master J. J. Thomas. The toast, "The Daughters of Rebekah," was responded to by Mr. J. G. Evans, in a pleasing and appropriate manner. Much credit is due to the com. of arrangements, the chairman of which was Mr. Jacob Morris, for the signal success of the banquet and entertainment. The event terminated at midnight, when the guests departed for their respective homes having enjoyed a remarkably pleasant evening.
